

The 405's optional codepack decompression core targets 60% smaller code and has no impact on the software environment.