

The underside of the mouse prototype shows the two wheels to detect motion. The wheels eventually moved inside the casing, where a ball acts upon them.