

Figure 1

Below the generic descriptions of these basic components and functions of a generic real-world-data-recognition system are the component identifiers for a machine-vision system. Smart or embedded cameras integrate the highlighted components for cost savings and higher reliability.