

Figure 2

In the hybrid mesh/star-networking topology, the full-function devices route data around the network; the reduced-function devices act as slaves that can switch on, register on the network, authenticate themselves using a previously exchanged 128-bit key, pass data, and shut down, all in tens of milliseconds (courtesy Ember Corp).