

Acquiring multigigahertz signals without introducing loading effects that completely invalidate the measurement requires great care, an understanding of the physics of probing, and highly specialized probes. These 10-GHz InfiniMax units from Agilent work with one of the company's DSO 80000-series scopes.

---