

Figure 2 After years of performance-based engineering, market forces are leading to new open architectures. At the block-diagram level, open and proprietary architectures are similar, but, at the implementation level, the differences can be significant.