

Figure A Though waveform-generator displays are not true scope displays of the output waveforms, some instruments' displays are realistic enough to indicate the 90° phase difference between the I and the Q outputs.