

Figure 1 Establishing galvanic isolation with the help of optocouplers between circuits that operate at different ground potentials looks deceptively simple. Optocouplers draw power from the isolated circuit, and switching can be relatively slow and uncertain because of LED aging.