

Figure 1 A copper pour forms a large heat sink that may look problematical from an EMI perspective. Because it carries no current, however, the heat sink does not radiate large amounts of RF energy.