

Figure M An OK International hot-air rework station has a dual-view camera that can slide out to help align the component you are soldering onto your board (courtesy National Semiconductor).

---