

Figure 10 In another active-balancing scheme, a transformer transfers charge between a single cell and a group of cells. State-of-charge information selects the cell for charging and discharging to and from the group of six cells.