

Figure 1 This taxonomy mapping highlights processing sweet spots of mainstream processing architectures and how embedded developers can combine them to complement each other and cost-effectively cover the range of an application's processing requirements.

---